

Franklin A. Carrero-Martínez, Ph.D, Senior Director, Office of International Networks, Cooperation and Security, U.S. National Academy of Sciences, Engineering and Medicine

Dr. Franklin Carrero-Martínez is a scientist, diplomat, and global policy leader who forges partnerships at the nexus of science, sustainability, and international cooperation. As Senior Director of the Office of International Networks, Cooperation and Security at the U.S. National Academies of Science, Engineering, and Medicine, he leads interdisciplinary initiatives spanning academia, government, and the nonprofit sector.

With over two decades of cross-sector leadership—including senior roles at the National Science Foundation and U.S. Department of State—Dr. Carrero-Martínez has led global coalitions and developed evidence-based initiatives to connect, support, and protect scientists worldwide, particularly those facing displacement or crisis. A bilingual (English/Spanish) scientist, strategic advisor, and former tenured faculty member, he is committed to people-centered, data-driven approaches that advance innovation, equity, and resilience across the research community. His work integrates diplomacy, science, and justice to ensure that evidence and human-centered design shape solutions to today’s most pressing global challenges.